

Inference in Non-Fiction: Reading the Spin

Name: _____

Class: _____

Date: _____

Answer in your book. Today you work alone, then mark a partner's answers against the criteria.

Part A: Do Now (4 min)

A1 The gates were locked, the flags had gone and a security van sat where the ticket booth used to be.
What can you infer? Use two clues.

A2 Point: the hotel is run down. Evidence: "a lift that had been "out of order" since spring".
Write the Explain only.

Part B: Small Print Detective (pairs, 10 min)

For each claim: (1) what do they WANT you to believe? (2) what does it actually prove? (3) what has been left out?

Part C: On your own (6 marks)

Text 1: from a local news report

Since the leisure centre introduced its $2 evening swim, attendance after 6 p.m. has tripled. The centre has extended its lifeguard rota twice, and the car park now fills by half past five. However, membership sales have fallen for the third quarter running, and the centre's café has cut its opening hours.

C1 What can you infer about the effect of the $2 evening swim? Use two clues. [2]

C2 Membership sales have fallen. What does this suggest about the scheme overall? [1]

Text 2: from a letter to the local paper

I have lived on Hill Road for thirty-one years. In that time I have watched the pavement narrow, the traffic double and the last shop close. The council tells us the new development will "revitalise" the area. I have heard that word before, in 2009, and again in 2016.

C3 What does the writer think of the council's promise? Use two clues. [2]

C4 What is the writer implying by mentioning 2009 and 2016? [1]

Part D: Swap and mark (8 min)

2 marks	1 mark	0 marks
A valid inference AND two clues from the text that support it.	A valid inference with one clue, or clues listed with no inference drawn.	Retells the text without working anything out.

Mark your partner's C1 and C3. Write their score, then one sentence: "To get the second mark you needed ..."

Part E: Exit Ticket (on your own, 2 marks)

E The company's annual report devotes fourteen pages to its tree-planting scheme and one paragraph to the factory closures. Profits, it notes in a footnote, are up.

What can you infer about the company? Use two clues.
