LESSON

Emotions in context: the sentence that carries the unit

Week 1: Feelings and settling in · Introducing when and because, six weeks before they are assessed

Can-do	I can say when and why I feel an emotion, in one complex sentence.
Grammar	I feel ... when ... and I am ... because ... Two clauses, both in the present simple. Third person: she feels .
Phonology	Unstressed when and because inside the sentence; the pause that separates the two clauses.
Lexis	Extended feelings bank: excited, nervous, shy, embarrassed, homesick, overwhelmed, proud, gloomy, eager, grumpy, cross.
Feeds the final task	Booklet section 5 directly, and the can write complex sentences line on the writing rubric. Four of the six booklet sections need a reason or an example, so this structure is worth more marks than any other single item in the unit.

Materials and preparation

Item	Source file in the Unit 1 bank	Prepare
Homework correction	1. Emotions / 2b Inside out adjectives nouns HOMEWORK.docx	Have the answer key to hand. Section 3 of this sheet is today's written output.
Extra adjectives	1. Emotions / 4 Inside out More adjectives.docx	Print 11. Use the image-based pages; the correction page stays with you.
Bingo grids	1. Emotions / 9 Inside out Bingo LISTENING.docx	Print 11 blank 3 by 3 grids. Students fill their own squares, so no two cards match.
Situation cards	1. Emotions / Dutch square emotions.docx	Cut into individual quote cards. Use the playful set: the spider, Baby Shark, the unfollowing dog, the bubble tea.
Substitution table	Build: one A5 card, see the board panel below	Print 4 for Tier 1. Laminate; they will be reused in Weeks 4 and 5.

Lesson flow, 55 minutes

Time	Stage	What happens	Teacher notes
0 to 6	Homework correction	Pairs swap sheet 2b and correct against the key on the board. Then a rapid oral round: you say a noun, the class gives the adjective, and the reverse.	Watch for anyone still writing the noun where the adjective belongs. Hand those students the Tier 1 word bank now, not later.
6 to 15	Extending the bank	Introduce eight new adjectives with images and mime: excited, nervous, shy, embarrassed, homesick, proud, gloomy, eager. Each one is mimed, repeated chorally, then used in a one-word answer.	Eight is the ceiling. Homesick lands especially well in an international school and is worth dwelling on.
15 to 25	Bingo listening	Students choose any nine adjectives from the board and write them into their grid. You read out situations, not words: Your best friend moves to another country . They cross off the adjective that fits, if they have it. First to three in a row calls bingo.	Because they hear a situation and must infer the adjective, this is comprehension rather than word recognition. Read each situation twice.
25 to 38	The core structure	Build the target sentence from the film they already know. Board: Riley feels nervous when she wakes up. She is embarrassed because she cries in front of the class . Establish that both halves are needed, then run a substitution chain: you give an adjective, a student produces a full two-clause sentence, the next student changes only the second clause.	Do not explain subordination. Give the pattern, drill the pattern, name it the long sentence . Insist on the whole sentence every time; half-sentences are the habit you are trying to prevent.
38 to 47	Situation cards	Each pair draws a quote card, for example There is a spider the size of a bus in the corner! They must (a) name the emotion and (b) rebuild it as a long sentence: I feel scared when I see a spider . Cards rotate every 90 seconds. Four or five pairs share at the end.	This is precisely the operation booklet section 5 asks for: an emotion plus the situation that triggers it. Say so out loud.

Time	Stage	What happens	Teacher notes
47 to 55	Written output	Sheet 2b section 3, completed in the notebook, not on the sheet: Today, I am ... because ... / I am usually ... when ... / I sometimes feel a lot of ... if ... / My parents are ... when ...	Collect two strong examples on the board before the bell. Tell them plainly that these four sentences are the first real draft lines of their booklet.

On the board, and copied into the notebook

I feel nervous when I speak in front of the class.

I am proud because I finished my project.

Third person: she feels shy he is excited (the s comes back in Week 5)

Substitution table: I feel | happy, nervous, shy, proud, homesick | when | I am with my friends, I speak English, I am late, I miss my family

Differentiation, 11 students in three working tiers

Tier	What they get	What success looks like today
Tier 1, support A0 to A1	The laminated substitution table with a closed set of eight when-clauses to pick from. Bingo grid pre-filled with six adjectives rather than nine. Two written sentences instead of four.	Two correct two-clause sentences, even if both halves come from the table.
Tier 2, core A1 to A2	Open substitution, free choice of adjective and clause. Full bingo grid. All four written sentences.	Four sentences, each with two clauses and a correct form of be or feel .
Tier 3, extend A2 to B1	Two extension adjectives required (overwhelmed, envious, bitter, ecstatic). Sentences must chain both connectors: I feel homesick when I see photos of my old school, because I miss my friends.	Four sentences, at least two chaining when and because in a single sentence.

Homework and assessment

Homework	Write three more long sentences in the notebook, using three different adjectives, each with when or because . Neat handwriting: these lines go into the booklet in Week 6.
Assessment	Formative but worth recording. Mark the four notebook sentences against one criterion only, does the sentence have two clauses. This is your baseline for the can write complex sentences descriptor on the final rubric, and it is useful to be able to show the same student's Week 1 and Week 6 sentences side by side.

Watch out for

When takes the present simple, never the future. I feel happy when I will see my friends is the predictable error. Correct it on the spot, every time, from today.

Half-sentences are the real risk. A student who answers nervous has not done the task. Send the question back: Nervous when? Accepting the single word once teaches them that the single word is enough.

Resist moving on if the class is fluent with it. The structure looks easy and they will produce it happily today, then lose it by Week 4. It needs deliberate recycling in every week that follows, which is why it appears in the scope and sequence six more times.
